Four Franklin schemes are now cash positive

Investors are yet to get payments due to interpretation of winding up rules

RI,050 crore repayment on debt issued by Vedanta Ltd along with interest has turned four of six frozen Franklin Templeton debt schemes cash positive as off 7 August, a note from Franklin Templeton showed.

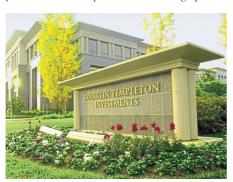

note from Franklin Templeton showed. Two of the four schemes, Franklin Dynamic Accrual and Franklin Ultra. Short Bond Fund, were already cash positive and the repayment has pushed two more, Franklin Low Duration Fund, into the positive territory. The Franklin schemes had borrowed money to meet redemptions in April. Interest and principal repayments on the debt paper held by the schemes have allowed some to completely repay their borrowings and turn cash positive. borrowings and turn cash positive. Cash in Franklin Dynamic Accrual and Franklin Ultra Short Bond Fund is as much 12% and 29% of assets while cash in the other two schemes is 1% of assets each. Steep borrowing levels, however, remain in the final two schemes with net borrowing at 2,31% for Franklin Short Term Income Plan and 37,22% for Franklin Income Opportunities Fund respectively. This means that the schemes will first have to pay off the bor-rowing and interest due before distributing any money to investors. In total, however, the six schemes have received 16,0/2 Lions, which is 23% of their combined corpus of around $26,000 crore.

A day after receiving the Vedanta payor and the Templeton Asset Man have received ₹6,072 crore, which is bined corpus to $26,000 crore. Aday after receiving the Vedanta payment, Franklin Templeton Asset Management (India) Pvt Ltd restricted inflows into its fund-of-funds (FoFs). Mergers and acquisitions are expected to continue in edtech and e-health startups as investors expect the covid-19 crisis will create a permanent change in how people access healthcare and education.

Among edtech startups, Byju's, Vedantu and Unacademy have been steadily buying out niche startups to diversify portfolios.
